

UBUNTU

Ubuntu is a poverty relief program based in Queenstown, Eastern Cape. Established in May 2005, the program incorporates the processes of making and selling hand-made natural body products, including soaps, creams and shower gel and all fragranced with pure essential oils, to generate income for volunteers working in After-School Care projects in the local Townships. The After-School Care projects focus on educating the youth on relevant issues such as HIV and Aids, human rights and domestic violence.

Ubuntu is the ideal corporate social responsibility project... supporting the local community, thereby contributing positively towards the programs sustainability, poverty relief and job creation, with the result of improved social and economic standards for the community at large.

By using pure essential oils, Ubuntu products not only provide excellent skin-care properties but also provide various therapeutic effects depending on the type of oils used. Indulge yourself in Ubuntu soaps and body products and feel the benefits of refreshment, relaxation and rejuvenation!
